Young Living Essential Oils Announces the Release of Inner Defense

Lehi, Utah—Young Living Essential Oils has recently added Inner Defense™ to its line of essential oil supplements. Containing a potent combination of oregano, thyme, and Thieves® essential oils, Inner Defense helps support well-being when the body is overworked and stressed. Rich in the constituents thymol, carvacrol, and eugenol, this revolutionary new product is a powerful tool for strengthening the immune system and promoting normal respiratory function.* Because Inner Defense creates an unfriendly environment for yeast and fungus, this nutritional supplement is ideal for fighting wintertime discomfort and improving digestion.*

Many people assume that essential oils and herbal supplements work the same. However, this is not the case. Because essential oils are highly concentrated forms of fresh or dried herbs and extremely potent, only a small amount of oil is required to achieve the desired immune-enhancing effects. Herbs, on the other hand, are not as concentrated or as potent as essential oils. Therefore, more herbal supplements are required to achieve the same effects. For anyone interested in an all-natural method for sustaining good health, Inner Defense is the product you have been looking for.
